Filter Inspection Completed

The annual filter inspections were completed by Foresthill staff this January. Annual inspections are necessary to keep the water treatment plant's backwash process operating properly. (Backwashing is the process that cleans a filter by reversing the flow of water through it while water jets wash the filter media.) It is particularly important to complete these inspections early to avoid high flows through the plant during the summer and fire season. The filters received an A+ and are ready for summer!
